

Graphic and Flash Design Intern, Fountain Square

Fountain Square is a public square in downtown Cincinnati, located at Fifth Street and Vine. Its centerpiece is the landmark bronze Tyler Davidson Fountain. The square is a popular hardscape, surrounded by hotels, banks, department stores, and restaurants. The space was donated to the city of Cincinnati by prominent citizen Henry Probasco and dedicated on its completion in 1871 to his brother-in-law, Tyler Davidson.

In September 2005, the fountain was temporarily moved to the Cincinnati Art Museum while Fountain Square underwent extensive renovation. The square re-opened to the public October 14, 2006. One of the new features of the square is a 24' x 42' Mitsubishi Diamond Vision video board that must be programmed 18 hours a day.
